Intro: Let the Journey Begin...

This MASSIVE workbook is called the “Ultimate Guide” to homeschooling for a reason - We cover it ALL!

But don't be intimidated. This easily could be condensed into a fourth of the size, but we didn't want to throw a bunch of info at you with no room to explore. Instead, we gave you plenty of space to absorb, brainstorm, plan, take notes, and spread the information out into manageable chunks.

So use the space to your advantage!

Take your time.

Go through the information in sections.

And give yourself a chance to explore every aspect of this journey.

There are several blank bullet journal pages throughout each chapter for you to use as extra space to write out your ideas and jot notes. Also included in each chapter are brainstorming workbook pages relevant to each topic covered in that chapter for you to expound on and work your way through the homeschooling process.

The brainstorming activities provided give you a variety of opportunities — to not only investigate the various decisions you will need to make, but they also allow you the chance to explore those ideas in ways that best help you process the information. You are given choices to write notes, doodle, and mind map. Try them all out or stick with the way you best process information. If you're a linear thinker, you may prefer making outlines or taking notes. If you are creative and artistic, you may want to doodle through your ideas. Feel free to explore or do what you know works.

We know you might be tempted, but DO NOT SKIP ahead!

Take your time with each chapter and work the process. Each chapter is specially designed to help you through every decision you will have to make on your journey and prepare you for the decisions in the chapter that follows.

Be prepared to relearn everything you've ever thought about learning!

Brace yourself — schooling is likely not what you think. If you were raised in the public school system, you may come at this process with some preconceived notions about home education and what the learning process should look like. Be prepared to have your mind blown and see learning in a whole new way! Have an open mind and let yourself discover what true learning looks like.

Consider consulting.

This massive undertaking was designed to be a guide for all parents to use, but it is best used in conjunction with a consultant to help walk you through all the steps and breakdown all the features. If you are interested in setting up a consultation, email homeschoolliving.info@gmail.com to receive a link to book a consultation with a Homeschool Pro.
